DYING, HIDES NAME OF MAN WHO SHOT HIM

STON POLICE INVESTIGATING MYSTERY IN CASE OF CLINTON C. CHILDS.

A strange mystery is involved, the police believe, in the shooting of Clinton C. Childs, who is lying at the City Hospital with a bullet wound in the breast, and who is on the dangerous list.

When questioned by detectives early today he absolutely refused to tell who shot him.

"It happened in Waverly," he replied. "It was an accident."

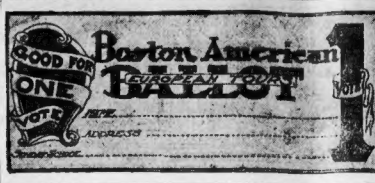

When the police tried to get a further statement Childs said that his memory was failing him and he could not remember the details of the shooting.

The whole affair is shrouded in mystery, and the police are following every clue.

It is known that Childs is a young man, about thirty years of age, and that he was shot in the breast by a man who was standing near him at the time.

The police have not been able to learn who shot him, but they are sure that the man who shot him is still in the city.

They are trying to find him, and they are sure that they will find him.

A Ponderous Busbybody Set Right at Last

"If you get where you can't get away," said the ponderous person with the pendulous cheeks, as he took the young man with the green cravat by the arm and fully explained to him a chair. "You're looking me for a moment, but I try to get it because I know you have. Now, I want to know what the young man with the green cravat is doing."

"Mr. Betty," replied the young man, "I'm not looking for anything. I'm just looking at you."

A Difference of Opinion

"My idea is to do you good. That's the main object. If your feelings get in the way or your dignity or anything else, I can't help that. I can get your confidence before you in such a light as to make you realize how foolish it is to resist to do you good. I'll be there to make you do it."

"You do, eh?" asked the young man, "Would you think anything for looking?"

"If you call the truth and plain facts—undeniable facts—told me, I would," replied the ponderous person, "I'll be there to make you do it."

"I think you're a little more than a good time since it's all for my own good. I'll stand it. Now, let me see your face. I'll be there to make you do it."

"I'm not the only one who does it. I'm not the only one who does it."

"I'm not the only one who does it. I'm not the only one who does it."

"I'm not the only one who does it. I'm not the only one who does it."

HOW HAIRDRESSING STYLES HAVE CHANGED And the Clever Girl Is Sure to Find the New Fashions Much Easier to Follow Than the Old

The New Double-Deck Pompadour That Has Sprung Into Instant Popularity.

THE Pompadour—modified and improved, to be sure—but still our old friend of years ago, has returned to favor. And it has come back with a rush.

The knot adorns the head of every Fall day, and the doom of the excessive hair styles and waves and curls is a thing of the past.

And the beauty of the newest style lies in the fact that any clever girl can follow the new mode without sighing for the aid of a hairdresser.

In the apparent carelessness of the latest coiffures lies the secret of their success. It is quite varied, too, and the girl who does her own hair, never getting it twice alike, is in the height of fashion.

One of the ancient fashions of the season is that of a pretty young actress who twists her own brown locks into the historical knot, sets a head of velvet ribbon.

Over her pompadour to hold it flat, then are shown in the accompanying photos. The left hand picture shows the rugged comb that holds the coiffure in place.

Another band to encircle the Pompadour. The right hand picture shows the "double-deck" pompadour. It looks as good as new.

A School for Wives Husbands, Also, Need Training for Marital Careers

By DOROTHY DIX

YESTERDAY we discussed the practical side of the school for wives, but the institution will fall far short of its duty if it stops at that.

A clever husband and a good housewife are a great deal, but they are not all; and, though as most women are fairly intelligent, it does seem as if they were not taught to avoid some of the other pitfalls of married life.

I have often thought that if the average wife would give as much thought and study to trying to understand her husband's peculiarities as she does to attempting to find out how things thought he thought the world would be a lot more cheerful.

There is a great deal to be learned in the first place. I think somebody ought to tell the wife that she is not a child of "personality" because she is a woman.

Humanisms

ONE cannot quarrel if the other will not.

The former the critic the more cutting the criticism.

If you have anything to do, do it; don't hear on the job.

It is only the mistakes of other people that are funny.

Great secret seldom comes to the man who takes on chance.

Stand in front of a mirror when looking at your worst enemy.

Many a man's chief fault is his failure to see his shortcomings.

A man thinks he is the simple life when he has no kick coming.

If a man has the right kind of reformations, he never knows when he is wrong.

Even a deaf man doesn't realize as he hears when some one is talking to him.

If he is truly a man who is willing to be a man, he is in the wrong when he is in.

WOULDN'T IT MAKE YOU MAD--

'Tis Mere Fabrication!

By James J. Montague

(Evidence of the sale of strong drink is alleged to have been discovered in the Colony Club, one of the most select women's clubs in the country—New York item.)

HAS lovely woman stooped to folly
By looking on the dry wet mouth,
And teasing of the high-ball?
In business, if she didn't drink?
When Mrs. X. about the city struts
In a little fin, she Indulges in a little fin,
Will men claim in heartiest pity,
"Her husband leads a life! Poor thing!"

MUST it be with little Brother,
With anguish-corrugated brow,
Wails forth at dawn: "Oh, Mother!
Mother!
Come home with me to Father now!
Leave these insatiable people—
And mingle in our midst once more!
Mark, when the clock in yonder steeple Now strikes ten minutes after four!"

FISH TUSH! "Tis false! Mere fabrication!
Let us such thought our musings vex,
The horrors of intoxication
Shall not disturb the gentler sex.
Men fear no deed, however risky,
In answering a woman's call.
We'll save them from gin, rum and white key—Aye! If we have to drink it all!

From the Files of the Future

By Wex Jones

IT is not a very unusual thing for anticipators cruising over remote regions to come across country people who cling to the old automobile as a means of locomotion. But what will be thought of the discovery made by A. W. Hink, the president of the Great Air Roads Club—the discovery of a horse, an animal believed long since extinct!

The discovery was made in a wild district in Arkansas, and there seems to be no doubt that the animal seen was really a horse, as the photographs obtained correspond closely to the sketches in the Museum of Natural Ancient History.

Just as this extraordinary discovery is reported comes news of the finding of a circular to have been used for running horses around, with what object is unknown, although savants conjecture that it was to ascertain if a horse could run faster than another.
There could be no such thing as a horse to day, of course, since modern science enables us to construct airplanes to fly at exactly the rate for which they are designed.

"Gullity!"

The sensational trial of John Smith for the murder of William Brown was at an end, and for the first time in the history of the United States of America, a defendant was convicted on the testimony of a vegetable.

Smith killed Brown in a cabbage patch about 11 o'clock at night, when he thought all the plants would be dead.

It was first discovered in 1893 that plants could see. Our modern scientists found that plants could not only see, but talk, and several of the most distinguished investigators have learned to speak in the language of plants, and other dialects. Of these the most distinguished is Professor Russell, who acted as interpreter during the trial.

Speaking in a low, muffled voice, the cabbage said his testimony in a clear way that carried conviction to the jurors, who were out only ten minutes.

William Jennings Bryan was again overwhelmingly defeated for the Presidency.

Orville Left broke all records yesterday for attempts to reach Mars.
Starting at 9 o'clock, Left shot away from the earth at the rate of 10,000 miles a second, and had traveled 200, 000,000 miles when his steering gear jumped and he ran into one of the stars of the Milky Way, but luckily escaped arrest as a freighter comet, although chased for some distance by the Dog Star.

Mr. Left will make another attempt to reach Mars as soon as he recovers his breath.

Should a Radical Vote for Bryan?

And What is a Radical, to Begin With?

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

Until election we are going to talk about politics. We are going to advise you to vote for the Independent party—THE ONLY WAY OF GIVING YOUR VOTE A REAL CHARACTER IN THE CAMPAIGN.

And we are going to advise you emphatically not to be deceived by any statement that Mr. Bryan, leader of the moth-eaten Democratic party, is in any way a fit or accepted exponent of intelligent radicalism.

Hundreds of thousands of radicals read this newspaper. We have talked with them every day for years. Many of them, we hope, believe that this column is sincere—that it advises with no desire except to tell the truth, and to show appreciation of the readers' confidence.

We state positively that an intelligent radical, a man who thinks for himself and demands real reform in our corrupt politics, HAS NO BUSINESS VOTING FOR WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Of course, he has no business voting for Taff—that is out of the question.

Mr. Bryan's friends present him as a radical—except, possibly, when his financial collector, Mr. Haskell, of the Standard Oil, goes around to make his collections. Mr. Bryan may not know it, but on those occasions there is no radicalism talked on behalf of Mr. Bryan.

And two days ago, when Mr. Sheehan, the lawyer of Anthony M. Brady, of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Trust, got a hundred thousand dollars for Mr. Bryan's other collector, Mr. Mack, THERE WAS MIGHTY LITTLE SAID ABOUT RADICALISM.

What is a radical?

YOU ARE.

You who read this are radical. Our word radical comes from the Latin word "radix," meaning root. And a radical is a man who goes TO THE ROOT OF THINGS. He is a man who digs up the bad roots, a man not contented with mere scratching of the surface.

You are a radical if you despise plutocratic government by money, as you do, and if you detect the shamming, surface pretense of men that seek office and approval, not caring how they get them.

The real radical opposes Mr. Bryan, IF HE UNDERSTANDS MR. BRYAN, because he knows that a sham reform is worse than none. You cannot cure a dangerously sick man with a little froth; you cannot cure a sick political situation with frothy words and bubbling, changing opinions.

Nietzsche, the queer German writer, created his character Zarathustra, the Superman.

Zarathustra was a radical in his own queer way. He came down to preach the truth, and after he had preached for a while he felt about as foolish and indignant as the real radical feels to-day when, after his talking and preaching, Mr. Bryan comes dancing out prepared to reap the reward.

Hopful old Zarathustra came wandering down from the mountains. He preached radicalism and wisdom, and the people seemed very much pleased. But suddenly "one of the folk shouted: 'We have heard enough of the rope-dancer; let us see him now!'

Imagine the horror of poor old Zarathustra, the radical, when he learned that there was a rope-dancer in town, and that the people thought that all his earnest preaching of radicalism was a mere "rope-dancing" for the rope-dancer—when he found out that they imagined that he was the rope-dancer's lectures, and that the rope-dancer represented HIM.

The real radical, the real citizen who goes to the root of things, is no "barker" for a rope-dancer, no voter for a rope-dancer. That kind of man will not give his vote to the verbal rope-dancer, William Jennings Bryan.

The radical seeks the truth, and when he finds the truth HE STICKS TO IT. Any man who has changed his fundamental opinions three or four times in as many years can properly vote for Mr. Bryan. But a man who sticks to his belief, no matter what others say, no matter what the effect may be, will not vote for the rope-dancer, the man that WAS for Free Silver and now ISN'T; the man that was for Government Ownership of Railroads and now ISN'T; the man who had a down payment, and now has none except this, THAT THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD GUARANTEE BANK DEPOSITS—in other words, that if a banker stole, every man in the country shall be taxed by the national government to pay back to the individual bank depositor the amount that the individual banker stole.

This country is a great, complicated machine. In its government there are at stake the welfare, the living, the bread and butter of millions of voters and their wives and children.

The Presidency of this country demands consistency, fixity of purpose, proved ability. It is no job for a rope-dancer.

If you heard a man make a very pretty speech, and if you knew positively that he had never done anything else, you would not give him the management of your individual affairs. Mr. Bryan makes a very pretty speech; he changes that pretty speech pretty often to suit the shifting scenes—and he has never done anything else.

If you give him management of the nation's affairs YOU GIVE HIM MANAGEMENT OF OUR OWN AFFAIRS, FOR YOU ARE TIED UP WITH THE NATION.

If you vote for William Jennings Bryan you vote to keep yourself out of work, if you are out of work now. You vote to make it sure that you won't save any money, and that you will spend in the next four years whatever you have saved, unless it is a good deal. If you vote for Bryan you vote for an experiment that will make real, earnest radicalism ridiculous; you vote for four years of a rope-dancer in the White House, four years that will disgust the people even with genuine radicalism and honesty in politics, and set them all howling. "If this is radicalism, give us Rockefeller!"

You can vote for Hugen and Graves, nominated by the Independent party, nominated by the very spirit that animates YOU when you rebel against bad government. You can help to establish through the Independent party a party of genuine, intelligent, consistent radicalism.

We believe that the real, intelligent radicals will vote that way.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

We are in receipt of your excellent editorial, and we are very much interested in the article under date of yesterday, calling attention to the fact that the "Public School Classes in Home Improvement" are so costly that we can get little benefit from them. We are very much interested in your remarks regarding buying and selling, and we are very much interested in the fact that you are so very much interested in what Boston is doing.
